MARK HALDEMAN JOINS EVERGREEN ENGINEERING IN HILLSBORO

(HILLSBORO, OR) March 9, 2007 – Evergreen Engineering (Evergreen) announced that Mark Haldeman, formerly of Northwest Engineering, has joined Evergreen as Director of Business Operations. With an extensive background in business management and engineering, Haldeman will focus on creating a strategic uniformity within Evergreen's nationwide offices in respect to corporate goals and image, operations, accounting, marketing, and overall business development.

Haldeman's past positions over his 16 year career in Business Management and Engineering include Administrative Manager, Regional Business Manager, and Vice President for Northwest Engineering, URS Corporation, BRW, and Dames & Moore.

Well-known and highly respected in the engineering industry, Haldeman is one of nine finalists of Commerce magazine's 2007 Rainmaker Awards. Nominated by colleagues, the awards recognize individuals who excel at obtaining new clients and projects, while making tremendous efforts in sharing their skills with others. All nine finalists will be honored during an April 19 lunch event; one will be named the "Ultimate Rainmaker" of 2007.

"We have experienced tremendous growth over the past few years - from a larger work force to expanding into a new office space," stated Todd Alsdorf, a Principal of Evergreen Engineering. "With Mark on our team, we anticipate to effectively develop and strengthen our company's goals and forward direction."

Established in 1985, Evergreen Engineering serves industries such as light industrial, bioscience, semiconductor, forest and wood products throughout the United States and Canada. With over 100 engineering, construction, and administrative staff, Evergreen is the right size to remain nimble yet have technical depth to serve today's customer. Evergreen provides design, construction, and code services to a wide range of projects that range from $5,000 to $150M, with nearly 95% of repeat business. With offices in Eugene, OR; Hillsboro, OR; Atlanta, GA; Santa Clara, CA; and site offices in Boise, ID and Albany, NY, Evergreen has been commended for its ability to listen to clients and takes pride in its ability to do jobs other firms consider too difficult or impossible.
